Chapter 1 by _Gray

She cries her self to sleep. Trying to alleviate the pain her heart was soaked in for 13 months. Day in day out, he treated her as though she was his wrong lover, a mistake. Sex and neglection filled her bed every night, but he never seam to notice the pain it put her through. Not having someone to talk to, or a shoulder too cry on.

Five years ago she made a hansom mistake.

"Mark i am pregnant" Those words pierced through his chest like an arrow through the armor of a Camelot warrior. Speechless for a moment he broke the silence with an uncertain answer.

"Are you sure?"

"Yes, I did it twice" Her voice grew stronger as she realize he was growing in the negative.

"Who's is it?" Finally gathering enough energy he asked awaiting an answer that could pierced his armor further.

"Why keep it if you are going to be with me?"

"I told you i would not throw away my first, i am in fear it might be my last. I told you that before"

"So am i suppose to live with it and you?"

"If you love me you will"

There was a silence on the line followed by a disconnect tone. He hang up on her. Something she was accustom to when ever he got angry with him.

Two weeks past and no call no messages. Her heart long to hear his voice. Two months no response it grew like that for her entire pregnancy. A period that was very difficult for her. Being with someone but yet feel lonely was the feelings she housed with her child father.

Her step father had pasted away leaving her emotionally weak and once more no shoulder to cry on. Walking through the door coming from the funeral her phone rang.
